CHINA PLEADING FOR U. S. HELP

PROBLEM was presented when 16-year-old Fred Thomas, resident of the Madison county children's home at London, O., won a purebred Hereford calf in a 4-H club contest. Finally authorities decided that Fred, helped by other children in the home, could raise the calf—provided the county is reimbursed for the feed "Bronco" consumes when he is sold at next year's fair.

Tax-Cutting Deals Hit

Entertainers Face Congress Inquiry

WASHINGTON, Nov. 27—Legislative action was threatened today in Congress to halt tax-cutting plans being employed by high-salaried professional entertainers.

Rep. Priest, (D) Tenn., revealed that he is considering introducing remedial legislation when Congress convenes Jan. 3.

The Tennesseean has requested Internal Revenue Commissioner George J. Schoene man for further details of the procedure under which entertainers "sell their services as a business" and thus pay a capital gains tax of 25 percent on their income rather than 70 percent.

Priest cited comedians Jack Benny, Amos and Andy and Edgar Bergen as professional entertainers who are availing themselves of this procedure.

THE CONGRESSMAN indicated that if he finds the tax-cut plans "threaten to become widespread."

Shoplifting Ring At Work Here? It's News To Us

Columbus police Saturday reported the arrest of three men allegedly involved in a shoplifting ring that extended through 17 Ohio cities—including Circleville—but it was all news to Circleville.

Although Capital City detectives reported that the ring sold loot taken from this city, Circleville Police Chief William F. McCrady said he had no knowledge of local shoplifting.

"If anything was taken here," he said, "evidently it was so minor that merchants neglected reporting the thefts to us."

Columbus detectives were attempting to establish ownership of loot seized in the arrests that has a total value of about $2,000.

The detective bureau reported two men who are being held in city prison, are 20-year-old John Mathews and 19-year-old William Collins, both of Columbus.

Third Columbus man, 21-year-old Arthur Hill was released.

Chillicothe police turned up the first lead in the shoplifting ring when they arrested Mathews and Hill on grand larceny charges.

Both were bound over to the grand jury and released on bond.

Reds Say Balkan Report Is 'Junk'

Vishinsky Bellows 2-Hour Tirade Against Damning Greek Commies

PARIS, Nov. 27—Great Britain called for United Nations action to help Communist-menaced Greece today and Soviet Delegate Andrei Vishinsky called the UN Balkan Commission's report "junk."

Vishinsky, climaxing a two-hour-long tirade, shouted:

"We accuse the Balkan commission of presenting us with a pile of deliberately fabricated lies."

Russia's deputy foreign minister added that the report, which condemns Greece's Communist neighbors for aiding the Greek Communist guerrillas, is "garbage and a blot on the dignity of the UN."

British Delegate Glenville Hall asked the UN General Assembly to rebuke the Balkan Soviet satellites for their alleged help to the Greek rebel forces.

Greek Deputy Foreign Minister Panyotis Pipinelis told the UN that passage of the resolution will give Greece needed "moral support" and prove to the Greek people that the "whole free world" is on their side against the Communists.

CHINA TOLD the UN that "world peace and security could use more of the kind of imperialism" represented by the United States and Great Britain.

Chinese Delegate Ting-Fu Tsiang, defending the two Western powers from Soviet charges that their Greek policy is imperialistic, said:

"We in the Far East know how

Docks Due To Reopen

Longshoremen Set To OK Agreements

NEW YORK, Nov. 27—Dock strikes on both East and West Coasts appeared headed for a speedy settlement today with all signs pointing to a return to normal operations by Monday or Tuesday.

In New York, some dock workers may return to work tonight.

Members of the AFL International Longshoremen's Association on the East Coast are expected to vote approval of wage increases and other benefits proposed by federal mediators. The proposals were accepted by East Coast employers late yesterday.

On the West Coast, members of the CIO International Longshoremen's and warehousemen's union and employers groups will act today or tomorrow on an agreement negotiated by their representatives.

Waterfront peace on the East Coast seems so certain that some ships diverted by the strike from the U. S. to Halifax, Nova Scotia, are already steaming toward New York.

IN BROOKLYN, a rebel movement to reject the settlement.

Closed Session Brings Attack

CLEVELAND, Nov. 27—The dispute over the presence of fraternities and sororities in high schools continued to flare in suburban Cleveland Heights today.

Parents yesterday rapped the school board for scheduling a private meeting to discuss the matter.

Most observers said the matter should be discussed in a public school board meeting—not "off in a corner."

PULLED AND SHOVED BY TUGS, the battleship North Carolina leaves the Brooklyn Navy Yard on her way to rejoin the mothball fleet at Bayonne, N. J. ### County Fair Board Elections Due Next Week

Seven vacancies on the Pickaway County Agricultural Society's board of directors will be filled next week.

Society officials said election ballots will be mailed members in a few days for balloting on the seven offices which are being vacated by expiration of terms.

One each will be named in Walnut, Circleville, Darby, Jackson and Harrison Townships. Two of the six seats in Circleville City also will be vacant.

As part of the reorganization plan of the board, Walnut and Circleville Townships will be represented by one, instead of two, members of the board of directors, known as the County Fair Board.

Incumbent members whose terms expire are: In Walnut Township, Ralph Fisher and Joseph Peters; Circleville Township, Russell Palm and Forrest Short; Darby, C. V. Neal; Jackson, Frank Reichelderfer; and Harrison, Harry Brown.

TOM HARMAN, secretary of the board, said he had no available record on the two Circleville City members whose terms expire.

Next Monday evening, the society's nominating committee

German Truck Driver Finds He Is A King

WIESBADEN, Nov. 27—A German Negro reportedly is seeking today to emigrate to Africa in order to trade in his truck driver's coveralls for the crown of a king.

The American Forces Network said that Arthur Semonu of Wiesbaden has been informed that he is king of a native tribe in former German possession of Togoland in West Africa.

Semonu told the network that he received a letter from his grandmother, who is queen of the tribe, asking him to come to Africa and assume the royal duties since she is "too old to rule one million people."

The network added that Semonu favors the idea. It quoted him as saying:

"I don't know what will happen but it feels fine to be a king."

The AFN said that Semonu's grandfather, a tribal chief, sent his son to Germany to study. The son fell in love with a German girl, married her and decided not to return to the jungle.

The present prospective king was born to the couple in 1919, after his father returned from serving in the Kaiser's army.

Semonu never saw the land or the people he expects to rule, and speaks no African dialect.

Mme. Chiang Visit Eyed

More China Aid Said Certain

WASHINGTON, Nov. 27—Madame Chiang Kai-Shek's forthcoming visit to this country was believed in diplomatic quarters today to indicate continued U. S. aid for her husband's government.

However, it was also deduced that her visit, presumably under official auspices or at least with official approval, indicates that this gesture is about the most that can be expected at this time.

Its most important implication, it was said, lies in the fact that it tends to discard any notion, now widespread in China, that the United States backs any move looking to Chiang's overthrow.

Events since the return of Secretary of State George C. Marshall also make clear that the United States has not yet decided on any momentous plan for aid to Chiang's government for the moment. In some quarters delay in making an announcement of American policy has been interpreted as indifference.

Some quarters have been critical of this delay. They argue that some statement of policy of what the United States intends to do be made at once and that we should either promise more support or abandon China.

THEY ARGUE that, in the latter case, the entire northern part of the country must be written off to the Communists. Moreover, they contend, the decision would conscribe all Asia to Communist rule.

In the current situation, India is reported to be particularly concerned.

While they note that Red forces could hardly make an approach over the Himalayas to India, there exists a possibility that Soviet dominated regimes could encircle the vast and important new republic.

Power Shutoff Is Due Sunday

Circleville will be completely "blacked out" early Sunday morning when workers for the Columbus and Southern Ohio Electric Co. make an installation in the substation.

Charles T. Gilmore, manager of the local electric office, said Saturday the power in Circleville would be shut off at 5 a. m. Sunday, but probably would be turned on again at 7 a. m.

He said reason for the power cutoff was that a new bank of transformers would be cut in at the substation which will service the new GE plant and other Circleville industry.

Red Force May Bring Collapse

Communists Seen Making Big Gains

NANKING, Nov. 27—China's Nationalist government made an urgent appeal for immediate United States help today to avert collapse of its Communist-harried forces.

The appeal, sent by the legislative yuan to the U. S. Congress, asked for help in "America's self-interest."

Nanking observers regarded the reports as an admission that Communist forces led by Gen. Chen Yi are driving successfully toward the vital Lower Yangtze Valley.

The yuan's appeal said that the loss of China to the Communists would endanger American security and the peace of the world.

The government reports claimed the encirclement of 10,000 Communists only 45 miles north of Nanking, and said that the battle for Suchow again is raging in full fury.

A tour of the battle fronts around embattled Suchow, where the outcome of China's dragging civil war is probably being determined, served to clarify the progress of the mammoth struggle now in its 18th day.

NATIONALIST field commanders told correspondents that the Communists are holding 48 miles of the rail supply line which is the main link between Nanking and Suchow.

An important rail center on this line, Pengpu, is believed to be the newest target of Red columns commanded by the ruthless, one-eyed Gen. Liu Po-Cheng.

Pengpu, just 100 miles northwest of Nanking, also is threatened by Red Gen. Chen Yi's columns driving down from Suchow's eastern flank.

In this eastern sector, Chen Yi's departure southward may

2 Soldiers Held In Pencil Racket

PARIS, Nov. 27—Two U. S. soldiers are being held today as suspected smugglers of $10-million worth of pencils from Germany to France.

The Army announced that Lt. Maurice Cohan, of Boston, and Cpl. Maurice French, of Deep River Falls, Minn., were arrested near Forbach in the Moselle department.

The men were seized on an Army truck which was carrying the pencils.

Authorities believe the cargo was destined for the French black market.

Mac Spurns Newsmen

Tojo Hanging Rule Irking Reporters

TOKYO, Nov. 27—Gen. Douglas MacArthur—appeared today to forceful press petitions that correspondents be allowed to witness the executions of wartime Premier Hideki Tojo and his six doomed co-defendants.

A MacArthur spokesman—Col. Marion Echols—appeared aware of the bitter press criticism of MacArthur's directive that the hangings be held in secret.

It is believed that they will take place Monday.

He assured correspondents that every effort is being made to provide equal breaks but admitted that newsmen are not being informed about minor details such as: "Tojo is reading."

Echols refused to answer questions about the details of the scheduled hangings, including a demand that the reason for the ultra-secrecy surrounding the executions be explained.

MacArthur made no direct statement on the proposed hangings but authorized Echols to cite Army Secretary Kenneth

Twin Youths Seriously Hurt In Friday Crash

Twin boys, age 13, were removed to Mercy hospital in Columbus Friday night after the truck in which they were riding skidded into a culvert and was hit by an auto carrier eight miles south of Circleville.

Injured in the crash were Howard and Harold Grim of Columbus. Sheriff's deputies said the youths were riding with their grandfather, W. F. Grim, 56, of Columbus, when the accident occurred about 10:50 p. m.

Grim told Deputies Carl Radcliff and Vern L. Pontious that a car was passing his two-ton truck and had cut in front of the Grim vehicle. He said when he applied his brakes, the truck skidded into the culvert.

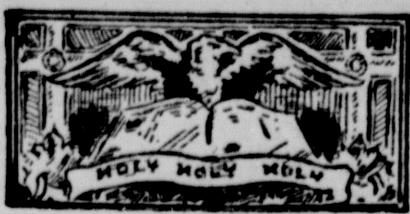

At the time the Grim truck hit the Chesapeake and Ohio overhead culvert, a southbound auto carrier driven by Thomas Motley, 29, of Detroit, approached

Church Women Studying Episcopalians Charge

MILWAUKEE, Nov. 27.—Delegates to the biennial convention of the United Council of Church Women today studied a charge that Episcopalians had been for-bidden to attend corporate communion services sponsored by the council.

The council president, Mrs.
Harper Sibley of Rochester, N. Y., charged that Bishop Benjamin F. P. Ivins had imposed the ban in a letter to clergy and layman last May.

Bishop Ivins, of the Milwaukee Episcopal diocese, had no comment.

Mrs. Sibley quoted the letter as saying:
"No intelligent or loyal church woman can participate in, nor should she be present at, such a service."

The council president asserted that pressure was being brought to bear upon Episcopalians to participate in the communion service.

Mrs. Sibley was reelected president of the council for a third term.

Other officers named included:
Vice-presidents: Mrs. Charles Gilkey, Yarmouth, Mass., and Mrs. J. Quinter Miller, Tuckahoe, N. Y.

Chosen recording secretary and treasurer, respectively, were Mrs. Abbie C. Jackson, Louisville, Ky., and Miss Gertrude Vint, New York City.

Plans were drawn up by the council to merge eight of the country's largest inter-denom-

Duties Of Christian In Peace Is Defined

LONDON, Nov. 27.—The Rev.
Cyril F. Garbett, archbishop of York, in a recent address laid down four duties of Christian people of all lands, looking toward the time when "the threat of war may pass and all nations may dwell in unity, peace, and concord." The duties defined are:

(1) The Christian must do his utmost to preserve peace and to remove the causes of war. The Christian will always refuse to speak of war as inevitable; to regard it as such brings it nearer. The Christian must never give up hope for peace. He will support the continuation of negotiations while there remains any chance of a settlement. He will do his best even at the cost of great sacrifice, to remove legitimate causes of grievance.

He will try to see and appreciate all that is good in countries other than his own. He will do all in his power to remove the suspicion and fear which lead to war.

(2) The Christian sees in the unbridled sovereignty of nations one of the chief dangers to peace. The danger of war will always be close as long as each nation claims absolute sovereignty, with no regard to any law except that of its own self-interest.

The Christian, therefore, should support the United Nations as an attempt to limit national sovereignty.

(3) While never losing sight of the goal of universal peace, the Christian should support all proposals that may remove or reduce some of the worst horrors of war. He must press strongly for the outlawry of the atom bomb.

The Christian should also press for some international agreement which would forbid obliteration bombing, a form of warfare which causes untold ruin and agony, followed by years in which the homeless herd together in shelters and cellars.

(4) But the Christian, with all his hatred of war and passionate desire for peace, must recognize that war is not the worst of all evils. The utter degradation of man, the loss of human rights, and the trampling underfoot of all that is righteous and true is an evil worse than war. The Christian must therefore be ready to resist to the last the unjust demands of an aggressive totalitarianism. This means that in an armed world the democratic State must also be armed.
Without arms it can neither defend itself nor make its influence felt on behalf of justice and freedom.

Weakness and timidity encourage an aggressor, while protests and arguments excite his contempt unless behind them there stands the resolution of an armed people ready to fight, suffer, and die, rather than passively submit to the murder of their nation and the enslavement of its citizens.

In closing, the Archbishop called his people "to pray for the preservation of peace. Steady, persistent, intelligent prayer in private and public worship is more important than the special days of prayer for which so many ask in days of crisis."

Answer To Needs Is Talk Topic

Sunday at 10:30 a. m., worship service in First Evangelical United Brethren church, will emphasize the theme, "Divine Answer to Man's Needs." The pastor, the Rev. Carl L. Wilson, will speak from this topic, using the scriptural text in Luke 18:41.

Organ selections chosen by Miss Lucille Kirkwood are "Canticle in B Flat" by Hosmer,
"Prayer of Thanksgiving" and
"Paeon Exultant" by Smith.

Congregational hymns to be sung are "In Thy Name, O Lord, Assembling," and "Take Time to Be Holy." The responsive scriptural reading, "Christ in the Daily Round," will be read by the pastor. Morning prayer will be offered by retired elder, the Rev. Charles Speakman.

Church school convenes at 9:15 a. m. under the direction of general superintendent Tom Conrad. This school is organized to meet the Christian education needs of all ages. Class arrangement cares for groups with common interests, who study under competent teachers. Each class is now engaged in a membership and attendance campaign which is producing desired results.

The junior church will begin a series of pre-Christmas services in the children's chapel at 10:30 a. m. under the supervision of Miss Gladys Noggle and Mrs.
Carl L. Wilson.

Youth Fellowship is showing an increased interest and larger attendance as it meets in the Sunday school room at 6:30 p. m.
Sunday night, Ronald Eldridge will be program leader. At the close of the program, the president, Miss Virginia Wise, will direct a period when the group makes final arrangements for their Christmas activities.

Evangelistic service will be held at 7:30 p. m. with sermon by the pastor and music in charge of Montford Kirkwood, Jr.

ND Professor Gets Appointment

VATICAN CITY, Nov. 27.—
Pope Pius XII has appointed the Rev. William Doherty, professor of law at Notre Dame university, to be editor at the forthcoming Roman Rota Tribunal.

Vatican officials said that the appointment would necessitate Father Doherty's transfer from Notre Dame to the Vatican.

The Rota, highest ecclesiastical court on matrimonial matters, in the main renders decisions on annulments.

GI May Now Stipulate His Church Membership

NEW YORK, Nov. 27.—Based on information received from the office of Secretary of the Army, Kenneth C. Royall, churchmen are now informing members when their particular sect is inducted into the armed forces, they may register as specific church members rather than the World War II registration in one of three classes,
"Protestant, Catholic, Jewish."

The advantage of registration by denominations officials said, is that chaplains of their own faith will be able to locate them for needed ministrations.

The new system of registration provides that enlistees and inductees will go to induction stations where they will be examined as to physical, mental, and moral qualifications for service in the armed forces.

Those found qualified are later inducted at the induction stations, allocated to one of the services, at the present time to an Army training division, and properly processed.

At the Army training division, a service record is initiated for each enlistee and inductee. This is known as WD AGO Form 24A, and it has a space on Page 1 Section 1, sixth item, which reads "Religious Preference."

Each person will be informed that he is authorized but not required to state his religious preference by denomination. The word "Protestant" will be used only when a Protestant claims no specific denomination.

The word "None" will be used when he claims no religious connection.

Parables Illustrate Bible Messages

ILLUSTRATED SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

By Alfred J. Buescher

Scripture—Isaiah 61:1-7; Matthew 13:31-33, 44-46; Luke 10:25-37; 15:3-32.

A lawyer asked Jesus what to do that he might inherit eternal life? Jesus told him that it was written in the scriptures that he should love God wholeheartedly, and his neighbor as himself.

The lawyer asked Jesus whom he considered his neighbor? Jesus said a man was robbed and wounded by thieves.
Some passed him by, but a Samaritan cared for him. He was the good neighbor.

Another parable Jesus told was that of the shepherd who, having a hundred sheep, lost one, and searched until he found it; then called in his neighbors and friends to celebrate with him.

Jesus also told of the woman who lost one of her ten pieces of silver, and when she found it, she called her friends to rejoice with her.

MEMORY VERSE—Matthew 9:35.

PALESTINE POLICY

THE recent Paris statement of the United States attitude toward the Palestine affair has been regarded in some quarters as indicating, at last, the fixing of a firm line of policy. As the statement was drawn to deal with the specific question of agreeing with the British on support of the Bernadotte plan, it seems premature to conclude that an inflexible policy has been decided on.

On the other hand, the statement has been attacked as a "straddle" which attempts to reconcile new sympathy for the Jewish position with our past fluctuations, and with full endorsement of the Bernadotte report in September. The present position supports the Bernadotte plan as "a basis for negotiation," but declares that no territorial changes should be enforced which are not acceptable to the Jews. The statement then says the Jews must cede territory to the Arabs to compensate for areas taken by force. This may seem like carrying water on both shoulders, but there may be good sense in the central idea.

It may be wholly impractical for this country as yet to decide on a Palestine policy which would not be subject to change. How can a fixed policy be set forth in detail, when the Palestine situation is still so fluid? Perhaps the best thing American officials could do would be to state clearly and simply the intention to keep looking for an amicable and workable solution, which will be just to both Arabs and Jews.

ALL-WEATHER FLYING

THE commercial aviation industry might be revolutionized by a development which engineers say is only five years in the future. This is a new system of navigation and traffic control which would eliminate weather as a controlling factor in flight operation.

It is plain that air travel would then be much safer and more efficient. The point of revolutionary significance is that air travel might become as reliable as ground travel, perhaps more so. This would increase not only the capacity of the system, but also the demand for air transportation. No one can guess how much business is lost to the air lines because people are unwilling to take the risk of having their plans disrupted at the last minute because of the weather. Every business or pleasure trip or other operation which depends on air travel scheduled in advance is subject to the hazard that when the hour arrives the flight may be cancelled or be interrupted indefinitely at some midpoint; or worse, that the passengers or cargo may be carried far beyond the destination because of inability to land. In the eyes of many, as individuals or as business executives, this risk is too great.

If it can be made possible for scheduled flights to be carried out regardless of weather, the whole complexion of commercial flying may be changed.

These Days

The conventions of the AFL in Cincinnati and of the CIO in Portland, Ore., are indicative of a pattern:

1. The labor federations have at last acknowledged that their most severe problem is Communist infiltration into their organization. The AFL makes no bones about it and hits hard; the CIO has organic difficulties arising from the fact that John L. Lewis, when he organized the CIO, knowingly used Communists as organizers and got stuck with them. Nevertheless, the CIO, as the AFL, is taking a definite stand in opposition to Communism.

In New York, the CIO disciplined its local council for supporting Henry Wallace, which was a wrong reason for a correct action. It is a doubtful practice at best for labor unions to become adjuncts of political parties in this country where a citizen votes as an individual, not as part of a class or a mob. If one may support Truman or Dewey, another may support Wallace. The New York Council should have been disciplined, if that is what the CIO desired to do, frankly because it permitted the Communist international line to control an American union. That would have been a tenable position, and is actually what the CIO did, although the statement was muted.

Similarly, while Phil Murray is as anti-Communist in his statements as Matthew Woll, he nevertheless dares not purge his unions of Communists for the obvious reason that the 13 Communist international unions might leave the CIO altogether. It has become customary for CIO apologists to say that only the leaders of such unions are Communists but that the rank and file are not. How does anyone know that precisely?

We have witnessed, for instance, the curious picture of Mike Quill who, in New York, heads a predominantly Roman Catholic group of workers. Quill played with the Communists for many years and was even accused not only by outsiders but by some Communists of being one of them. Then he quit them and got into a smearing operation with them. One would have imagined that the rank and file of that union would stand solidly behind Quill, welcoming the penitent leftwinger with open arms. But that is not so. Mike Quill is having lots of trouble and the Communists are still very effective in his union.

2. The other pattern has to do with the Taft-Hartley Act, which both organizations say they wish to have repealed. And both contend that they wish to have the Wagner Act reinstated. But obviously the Wagner Act needs to be amended. Underneath all this, it would appear, is a desire to combine the Wagner Act and the Taft-Hartley Act, to keep certain provisions of each.

It will be interesting to see how this works out. The craftsmen of CIO legislation, Lee Pressman and Nathan Witt, have fallen from grace. Lee Pressman's influence, not only over that organization but over every act of government in industrial relations, has been paramount since 1937. He has not only been the lawyer but the philosopher of left-wing trade unionism and his philosophy was, in all respects, Marxist. It is because most of the young lawyers attached to the Wagner Act National Labor Relations Board were under Marxist influence and orientation that the Wagner Act became an instrument of national disruption.

Next year the tax forms will be changed, says Treasury Secretary Snyder, making the income tax blank easier to fill out. This change will be welcome, but what is really needed is one making the tax easier to pay.

"They're drafting them too young!—Can you imagine?—On their time off, they prefer baseball!"

DIET AND HEALTH

Safe Ways of Hair Removal

By HERMAN N. BUNDESEN, M.D.

THE excessive growth of hair over one or more parts of the body is called hypertrichosis. This condition may occur in either sex, but is of special concern to women who are apt to worry about it more as a detriment to good looks than for its possible bearing on health.

While it is true that excessive hair may occur in women who are otherwise perfectly healthy and normal, it may also be an indication of certain serious conditions, such as tumor of the adrenal glands, located just above the kidneys, tumor of the ovaries, or of the pituitary gland at the base of the brain.

Rare Occurrence

Fortunately, these disorders are of very rare occurrence. Nevertheless, they are also so grave that in any disturbance of normal hair growth, they must be ruled out before other treatment is started. This requires a careful study by the doctor, including an X-ray of the skull if there is any question of tumor of the pituitary.

Once it is established that none of these serious conditions is causing excessive growth of hair, treatment aimed at getting rid of it may be started.

Satisfactory Method

By and large the most satisfactory method of dealing with it is shaving, and most doctors will advise this course even though it does not appeal to their women patients. Most women have the idea that repeated shaving will not only make the hair coarse but will cause it to grow more rapidly. Neither of these things is true.

The alternatives to shaving all have more or less serious objections. X-rays will cause wasting of the skin, the formation of large blood vessels and, sometimes, severe itching. Thus, the woman who uses this method runs a chance of substituting one blemish for another and, at the same time, lets herself in for considerable discomfort.

The use of powders or pastes containing a chemical known as barium sulphide is shunned by a great many doctors on the ground that it not only tends to redden the skin but stimulates the hair growth as well.

Chronic Inflammation

Pulling the hair out with tweezers may cause chronic inflammation around the hair roots.

Removal of the hair by the electric needle is slow and painful, but is useful when only a limited number of hairs need to be removed. When an excessive amount of hair occurs during the change of life, as sometimes happens, treatment with stilbestrol should be employed to relieve whatever symptoms are present. However, this substance has no effect on the growth of hair.

Women who have disturbances of hair growth should consult their physicians for examination as soon as possible. It is important that tumors, or any glandular disturbance which may be present, be determined and proper treatment carried out.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

E. T.: What is lupus erythematosus?

Answer: Lupus erythematosus is a disorder characterized by pinkish or reddish-colored patches of various sizes and shapes, usually on the face, and leaves thin, white scars. The cause of this eruption is not definitely known.

X-ray treatments seem to be the most satisfactory way to clear up the eruption temporarily. A lotion containing zinc sulphate, sulphur, and sulphurated potassium is helpful. Radium also has been used in treating the disorder.

DON'T CHANGE TOO FAST

ENCOUNTERING something unexpected during the play of a contract should make you sit up and think. If you had a well developed plan in the beginning, you must consider changing it. But don't change too quickly. Give the new situation the same kind of thought you used with the original plan. Maybe some inspired idea, which hit you when the surprise appeared, is not such a good idea after all, and perhaps you should proceed along the first path.

Not everybody would bid 2-No Trumps on that South hand, but the bid should have worked out well in this case, and would have if South had not developed a burst of genius shortly after the play began.

West opened the diamond 7, the J winning that trick, the Q the next and the A the third. South had decided that by holding up the A until the third round and then playing clubs toward East, he could probably keep West out of the lead and make his contract—if East had the heart A. The plan was pretty sound, so South embarked on it.

Laying down the club A, South was startled by the fall of the J. He let that change his plan, deciding that East was more likely to have a doubleton Q-J originally than that West had four headed by the Q. If this was the case, he reasoned, he could clear up the whole club suit by dropping the Q with the dummy's K. So he tried that and was flabbergasted when East discarded a heart. Worse still, he was beaten, as now all he could score was eight tricks, with three in hearts, one in diamonds and two each in the black suits.

Even with the chance that East held the club Q, South should have finessed the 10 on the second trick. If that failed, enough club tricks would be certain to give him game anyway, without risk to his contract if the heart risk where it had to be. And A was where it had to be. In addition, the Q was more likely to be with West than East, after the fall of the J.

Why should a rubber bridge player try to put it into a major suit, if it is safe, instead of in an equally safe minor?

All About Marriage

by ETHEL HUESTON

SYNOPSIS
Lovely young Donna Collwell had developed an almost psychotic aversion to marriage. She vowed she loved Mark Banister, her devoted avian over the years and said that because she did love him she could never become his wife. Her parents were particularly distressed by this decision, for they hoped Mark would take the place of their only son lost in the war. Donna seemed perfectly content to go on being a New York career girl, circulating socially, keeping occasional dates with Mark, she managed very tactfully to get out from under parental domination by sharing an apartment in New York with a group of business girls. Mrs. Collwell found herself confused by all this strange new way of life, but when she visited her daughter's quarters in New York she was pleased with the arrangement. With Christmas just around the corner, Donna spent the week-end at home in New Jersey to make holiday plans. She dropped in to say "hello" to a neighbor and was amazed to find Mark Banister a guest in the house. His bride partner a most attractive young woman. Mark refused the Collwell invitation for Christmas dinner, but promised to join in the tree trimming festivities on Christmas Eve.

CHAPTER TWELVE
WHEN Mrs. Collwell excused herself to go upstairs, Annette stared after her for a long instant and then slowly followed. She tapped softly on the door of her mother-in-law's room. "May I come in?" she whispered. Mrs. Collwell opened the door to her. Annette closed it behind her. She put her arms around Mrs. Collwell and the two women wept together, brokenly, their shoulders heaving, their throats scorched with sorrow, wet faces pressed together. They separated at last, almost by spontaneous movement. They laughed, with wet but smiling lips, their eyes still streaming. Mrs. Collwell patted Annette's face with her handkerchief.

"That's enough now," she said. They went together to the dressing table. Mrs. Collwell opened the powder jar and the puff box and gestured to Annette to help herself and together they set to repairing the facial ravages of their brief emotional tempest.

"We've missed David, Annette," Mrs. Collwell said quietly. "It's right we should miss him. But David wasn't our entire life and couldn't be. And shouldn't be. I still have Alan and Donna. You have David, but a little boy is not enough. David would be the first to say so."

Annette nodded gravely. "Yes, I tell myself that. It wasn't easy to decide, Mother Collwell. Nothing has been easy. Things . . . have been . . . very . . . hard."

"Yes, I know. You've been grand, Annette. We're very proud of you. Donna was proud of you, too, the night of the party with all the old crowd there."

"That wasn't easy, either."

"No, but Donna was proud of you. It wasn't easy bringing him here to us that Sunday either."

"No, that was hardest of all."

"Well, don't get the idea that you are rid of me as a mother-in-law," she said, and spoke more lightly. "I shall horn in on your affairs whenever I feel like it. I shall stand on my rights as David's grandmother."

Annette nodded, laughing tearfully. "Changing the name is the hardest of all. Just the name, David Collwell, has always meant so much to me—all my life, from the time I was a kid in pigtails. David was—just wonderful. He was such a grand brother to Donna. Even when we were little, we were jealous of Donna because she had David for her brother. . . . I argued a long time about changing the name. And yet I think he is probably right."

"Yes, that's a little hard for me, too. Just at first. But he is right, Annette. David is the one we have to think about. So we're just going to take it, aren't we?"

They went downstairs together, talking lightly of other things, of Christmas and toys and the high price of turkey.

Sunday was a dull day at the Collwells'. The Sunday before Christmas, it was a dull Sunday at the Collwells', with Donna there! There was a little too much cheery chatter, too much to-do over Christmas cards and wrappings. When Miriam Allison telephoned and asked Donna to run down for a while, Donna accepted with glib pleasure.

"Sure, I'll come! What's cooking?"

"Nothing's cooking. I'm in a jam. Were all in a jam. I made Jigger take the Jug out for a sleigh ride. I want to talk to you, Donna. Alone. Come right away. Hurry!" Miriam's voice was insistent.

"What do you want to talk to me about?" Donna asked warily. Jigger Allison was one of Mark's best friends and Miriam was a party to their friendship.

"About Mrs. About us. About bills and business. I want to ask a favor of you. Hurry up, will you?"

Relieved on that score, Donna went willingly but Miriam's first words were not reassuring.

"Donna, did you mean what you said? That it's all off between you and Mark Banister?"

"I thought you wanted to talk about you."

"I did. I do. This is the pre-amble. Did you mean it? About you and Mark?"

"We are not engaged and we are not going to get married. Yes. But we are still friends. I hope."

"Oh, Donna, darling, if you'll help me out of this jam, I'll do anything on earth for you. I was half crazy with worry. I didn't know which way to turn. But," she added virtuously, "I certainly wasn't going to stir up any trouble between you and Mark."

"Don't tell me you're in love with him yourself!" Donna ejaculated.

"Oh, it's worse than that. Much worse. Falling in love with Mark would be a picnic compared to the jam I'm in."

Yet her account of the predicament suggested no serious involvement so far as Donna could discover. Her husband, Jigger Allison, had an older brother, one Si Allison. Jigger was devoted to him. Miriam had never met him. He had been good to them. Now, for the first time, he was coming from California to visit them, to spend the entire Christmas week. Miriam was abject and terrified.

"What are you abject and terrified about?" Donna asked. "Sounds all right to me. In-laws are always popping in on you when you least want to and expect them. Don't you have to swear at the altar to take on all your in-laws for better or worse and God help you and them? It sounds all right to me."

"It is all right if you will help."

"What have our grandparents to do with it?"

"All right, you dumbbell. Here's a map. Here's a blueprint. Words of one syllable. Grandfather Allison, the old devil, died when Si was six years old. He made a will—before he died, you understand—and left everything he had to Si. And he had plenty."

"What had Jigger done? Stuck a hornet's nest between his blankets?"

"He hadn't done anything. He wasn't even born. The old man evenly figured that since six full years had elapsed there weren't going to be any more grandchildren so he left it all to the one he was sure of. I suppose he thought parents should make the stork an annual event. Anyhow, he abandoned hope and left everything to Si."

Pages From the Diary of An Antiquated Reporter:

Up to a cold and dank morning, watching rain against the windows as I sipped milk instead of coffee. Too much Java lately setting nerves ajangle. Soon out and away for the village, passing Ade Yates' place and recalling driving the new Buick he has on display. A fine car, but so is the Cadillac I saw at Clifton's and the other new wagons that soon will be coming through. And all at upped prices. I understand. Wonder how far auto prices now are from the buyer resistance point. Just a short putt probably.

Noted again the Christmas decorations in the downtown area. Saw them going up. Work being done by one independent merchant and more than a half dozen of the "chain" men.

Karl Johnson, directing head of the blood bank to open here in mid-December, was in to talk about possibilities. Did recall the war days when Pickaway County did its full share and predicted that it will do the same thing in peacetime. Little to worry about there.

Wonder what happened to all the rabbits and pheasants so much in evidence before opening of the hunting season. Gunners have found game unusually spotty. And, now that the pheasant season is closed, they may expect those birds to be back in evidence. Mighty smart, those winged ones.

Noted that the C.I.O. is demanding a fourth pay hike without increase in prices. Would be mighty fine if possible. Some years ago it was the working citizen who was identified as the forgotten man. Now, it is the stockholder in concerns providing employment. Wages have skyrocketed, but except in exceptional cases, common stock dividends today are about the same as they were ten or more years ago. Is it possible that the cost of living has not increased for stockholders? And, bear in mind that most of the stockholders are very common folk. Their income measured by today's yardstick of prices is about half of what it was before this great era of "prosperity." Who has the nerve to say these are prosperous times? Union after union claims present day wages provide only for a low living level. Farmers are yelling about dropped prices. Industry is taking in more money than ever before and keeping very little. No one seems satisfied, yet everyone says these are prosperous times. Maybe.

Noted the Booster Club's ad making public its expenditures. Was surprised at the amount spent. Great work on the part of a fine organization. However, I am puzzled by the failure of the school and its athletic department in not providing equipment which the Booster Club felt was needed and which the Club bought for the school.

First EUB Church Groups Abandon Gift Exchange; To Help Shut-Ins Instead

Christmas Party Set For Dec. 30

Instead of the customary Christmas party and gift exchange staged annually by women of First Evangelical United Brethren church, they will remember persons who are shut in.

This decision was made Friday evening when the Ladies' Aid and Service Circles of the church had a joint meeting in the community house. Elected to serve on a committee for the arrangements were Mrs. Russell Jones, Mrs. John H. Stevenson and Mrs. Carl L. Wilson.

The Christmas party was scheduled for Dec. 30. At that time Mrs. Chester Starkey and Mrs. Marvin Jenkins will arrange a program. Decorations will be directed by Mrs. Cora Coffland and Mrs. James Cook. The meeting opened with the group singing "O, Worship the King." The Rev. Carl L. Wilson, pastor of the church, had charge of the worship services, using for a theme the 24th Psalm.

During the routine business session when reports were heard, Mrs. Wilson, Mrs. C. O. Kerns and Mrs. Harry Styers, captains of the Service Circles, gave resumes of their respective groups' activities.

Readings were given last evening by Mrs. Frank Hawkes, Mrs. Harry Styers and Mrs. Ronald Nau, program chairman. Ruth Styers played a piano solo and Patty Nau a trumpet solo. Mrs. Edward Millions gave the benediction. Lunch was served by members of the "Rebecca Circle."

For Him

KEEP HIM BUSY, get him a tool chest or some wood working equipment. Winter evenings are long and reading often gets tiresome. A small workshop with a few tools will help and also keep some repair bills down. See the selection at Harpster and Yost.

GOING PLACES? Back to school, traveling or just over the weekend, everybody could use Samsonite luggage. Give the boy or girl in college a new traveling bag, get a small bag for dad for the short trek that he must take or if mother is going along for a trip get one of the large portable wardrobes. A really-truly gift. Priced from $17.50 up at Mason Furniture.

FOR THE OLD maestro with the yen for carving and serving, give the new carving set that we saw at Harpster and Yost's Hardware store. Stainless steel blades with stag handles with which he could surely go to town. $12.95 is the price. Think how he will be able to carve for the traditional Christmas as a bird.

FIRE AWAY—Don't let the thought of a little work keep you from enjoying an open fireplace. Nothing is more cheering on dark, cold wintry nights than a log burning slowly in the open fireplace. See the fireplace sets that Harpster and Yost have in stock; Colonial fireplace tools in a slender stand priced from $9.95 up. Shovel, tongs, poker and brush in solid brass. Also screen and andirons. A set of these would make a gift for the man of the house who prides himself on "keeping the home fires burning!"

HERE'S A SHIRT TALE worth telling, it's an Arrow shirt from Caddy Miller's Hat Shop. To wear with comfort and ease because of the excellent workmanship and fitting of these shirts that are recognized as deluxe in either dress or for everyday wear.

WELL DRESSED MALE sheep counters will wear Glover or Pletaway pajamas from the Caddy Miller Hat shop this season. Beautifully made and so well fitting. They come in rayon, chambray, madras, broadcloth and outing. They're really so attractive, we can imagine some of the college gals totting them back to school for their own use in the dorm.

IF THE MAN of the house is methodical and does things at certain times we would suggest a clock for the mantle where he can see it from the easy chair. Kochheiser Hardware has a really handsome electric clock in a mahogany case that has an old world appeal. Not what you would say antique just semi-modern. Many others in all sizes and colors.

IF YOUR GUY is the kind that likes to sit by the fire in the evening get him a lounge chair with ottoman. Priced from $49.50 up, at the Mason Furniture. They're wonderfully comfortable and decidedly attractive. We know they would please and they are practical.

AT MURPHY'S record department you will find the latest hits by well known artists also a wide selection of Christmas songs and carols. Make Dad's Christmas a musical one.

17 Games Booked For Cage Squad

Circleville Sets 8 Home Tilts

Aspirants to the Circleville high school basketball team Monday will find themselves really pushing to get in shape for the season opener next Saturday against the Chillicothe Cavalier quintet.

Dorwin Peer, CHS cage mentor, has limited practice during the first two weeks to "just piddling around," letting the boys get their eyes in shape and recover from the many feeds given members of the championship football team.

Peer is a trifle pessimistic about the Tiger troupe this year, quoted as having said the team would be "lucky to win more than half of its games. What the team needs is a couple of tall boys."

The Circleville team, now in its early formation stages probably will have an average height of nearly six feet.

TIGER SCHEDULE for the season calls for 17 contests, eight at home and nine away. Eight of the matches will be with South Central Ohio league teams. All home games will be in Pickaway Fairgrounds Coliseum.

Following is the Tiger schedule for the season:

Dec. 7—Grove City.
Dec. 14—at University.

Jan. 7—Hillsboro.
Jan. 14—at Wilmington.
Jan. 18—Ashville.
Jan. 21—at Westerville.
Jan. 25—Chillicothe.

Walnut Humbles Deers, 74-31

Walnut Tigers basketball team Friday night walked away with its third Pickaway County League win in as many starts by drubbing the Williamsport Deers on its own court by a final count of 74-31.

The Walnuts leaped into an early lead in the free scoring tilt, posting a 23-5 lead in the first period and allowing the Williamsporters to approach not closer than 21 points throughout the remainder of the encounter.

Walnut reserves made a complete night of it for the Tiger team, posting a 17-10 win over the Deercreek juniors.

High scorer in the varsity fracas was Lloyd Hardwick, who potted 19 markers for his Tiger aggregation. High man on the Williamsport team was Dick Henson, who netted eight.

Irish, Wolves Dominate INS All-Midwest '11'

CHICAGO, Nov. 27—Notre Dame and Michigan each placed three players today on International News Service's All-Midwest college football dream eleven for 1948.

The team was strongest at the guards, where four players—Bill Fischer and Marty Wendell of Notre Dame, Dominic Tomasi of Michigan and Leo Nomellini of Minnesota—were adjudged worthy of first-team acclaim.

Therefore, two of them, Fischer and Nomellini, were placed at the starting tackles, where both have seen some action during the season.

Alex Sarkisian of Northwestern was unanimously chosen for the first-team center position, and Leon Hart of Notre Dame and Dick Rifenburg of Michigan were tabbed as the best ends in the section, although Warren Huey of Michigan State was a strong candidate at that position before being hurt.

All four backfield choices were standouts. They are: Lynn Chandnois, Michigan State's run-away express; Pete Elliott, soul and heart of the tremendous Michigan offense; Art Murauskowski, Northwestern's swift and smashing fullback; and George Tallafiero, the one-man backfield from Indiana.

Graziano Given Boot By NBA For Bout Call-Off

NEW YORK, Nov. 27—Rocky Graziano, the National Boxing Association's befuddled ex-middleweight champion, is out of the leather-slugging business for a while in fact as well as in fancy. Graziano, who admittedly "no longer has any desire to fight," was under indefinite suspension today by both the NBA and the California Boxing Commission.

The NBA slammed the door in Rocky's face because of his runout on a scheduled Dec. 1 bout with Fred Apostoli in Oakland, Cal.

The action extended his suspension to every state except New York and Massachusetts where he already is banned for failure to report a bribery attempt. The suspension also applies to such NBA-affiliated countries as Canada, Mexico, Cuba, Panama, Great Britain, France, Italy and Belgium. Graziano, who won and lost the middleweight crown in successive bouts with Tony Zale, was described by his manager, Irving Cohen, as "mentally and emotionally" incapable of fighting at present.

The California commission stipulated yesterday that Graziano be given a hearing Dec. 18 in Los Angeles.

British Boxer Humbles Yank

NEW YORK, Nov. 27 — New York fans had a favorable impression of a British boxer today — a rare experience.

Canada's Arthur King, recently crowned British Empire lightweight champion, won a unanimous 10-round decision over Chester Rico of New York in his first New York appearance last night.

Rico failed to win a round as the Canadian hit him almost at will with a varied assortment of punches. Rico's right eye was completely closed.

AAA Chief Explains Rules For 1949 Loans On Corn

Now Is Time To Ready New Crop

Crib Requirements Are Detailed

John Boggs, chairman of the Pickaway County Agricultural Adjustment Administration, Saturday listed the requirements which must be met by county farmers in order to receive the 1949 corn loan.

Boggs cited that now is the time most farmers are finishing their stands of corn and are getting busy in husking from the shock.

He says that farmers who now are beginning to bring in the major portion of their corn crop and who are looking for the corn loan, should follow a few basic rules required by loan inspectors.

Primary among the loan regulations is adequate and safe storing space, cribs which will house the crop all year with little deterioration.

"The bin or granary must protect the corn from rain and snow, surface floor moisture, floods, loss by fire or wind and from birds or rodents," he said.

"PARTICULAR attention should be given to the bin's location, condition of roof, walls, flooring and foundation, and to its ventilation."

In general, cribs must meet the following specifications before application for a loan is considered.

1. To hold corn without loss to quality or damage to quality;
2. Provide reasonable protection from loss by wind, rain or flood; and
3. Permit free ventilation through side walls.

Boggs said that inspectors take representative samples of the commodity. For instance, a two-pound sample is taken of ear corn to determine grade and moisture, determination made in a local establishment.

At the same time, 15 different proings will be made throughout the crib, including samples from near the bottom of the crib, spots where shelled corn or trash may have accumulated and under the elevator spout if the crib has been filled by conveyor.

Most important of the three probes will be the one taken from the bottom of the crib, which usually will consist of the early crop taken first from the field.

Loan rate for Pickaway County has been established at $1.49 per bushel.

Recount Dropped; Paul Elected

COLUMBUS, Nov. 27—The acknowledged defeat of Democrat Henie G. Butler in the race for Franklin County sheriff ended another ballot recount today.

Butler called off a complete check of 213 precincts after returns from 33 sample precincts showed him losing ground to his Republican opponent, Sheriff Ralph J. Paul.

Paul picked up a 1966-vote lead over Butler in the Nov. 2 elections.

Butler and his attorney also sent a letter to the secretary of state indicating that they were satisfied that no election "irregularities" occurred as was originally charged.

Business Good? Depends On Who Compiles Figures

Whether retail business in Pickaway County is up or down compared to a year ago apparently depends on how you look at the economic picture.

Ohio's retail sales tax figures show that so far this year, retail sales volume in Pickaway County is well above the same figure for the same period in 1947.

As of the week ending Nov. 13, sales of prepaid tax stamps here totaled $195,829. This is to be compared with a figure of $171,695 for the same period in 1947.

Some local retail businessmen claim this is a false picture.

They cite one thing: Prices are higher now than a year ago.

Earlier this week, the Bureau of Labor Statistics in the nation's capital reported that retail prices are up six percent from prewar.

On this basis, the 1948 retail sales tax figure should be pegged at $181,996—below the actual total of $195,829.

Nevertheless, many local businessmen maintain their books show business is "worse than a year ago."

Gunman Subdued With Tear Gas

AKRON, Nov. 27—Frank Percoco, 30, was in Akron's St. Thomas' hospital today, his five-hour battle against the world at an end.

Percoco surrendered shortly before midnight last night after withstanding a heavy bombardment of tear and nauseating gas bombs in his three-room apartment. He tossed away his two guns and gave up when police began to smash a wall to gain admittance to the room where he had barricaded himself.

Percoco's wife, Connie, fled the apartment early last night when she said, her husband got out and loaded his guns. Police summoned to the apartment were greeted by a fusillade of shots, and the battle was on.

Greek Premier Reported Failing

ATHENS, Nov. 27—Themistocles Sophoulis, Greece's 88-year-old premier, was reported to have taken a "turn for the worse" today.

An official bulletin said that the premier's condition had grown worse over night and that he has been given the last sacrament.

The aged premier suffered two heart attacks last week after his reshuffled cabinet survived parliamentary attacks by only one and two votes.

Sophoulis resumed the post of premier after resigning when Foreign Minister and Vice Premier Tsaldaris proved unable to form a government.

CLEVELAND, Nov. 27 — William F. Ponds, a 52-year-old mail carrier, was without his car today because of reckless driving—but it wasn't his fault.

Ponds chased the auto on foot. He flagged down a passing police car and while cruising, he saw his automobile smashed against a tree. The police discovered a 22-year-old youth behind the wheel.

France Fears German Future

PARIS, Nov. 27—France welcomed today the Anglo-American invitation to join in controlling the Ruhr's steel and coal industries, but indicated her worries about the vital German industrial area are not fully quieted.

U.S. Suffering Potato Headache

WASHINGTON, Nov. 27—The government announced today the plugging of another gap in the leaky potato price support program through a Canadian pledge to halt the flow of table grade potatoes to the U. S.

The agreement, accomplished by a formal exchange of notes between the two governments, binds Canada to set up a support program of her own and to require export permits for certified seed potatoes.

Sen. Gurney (R) S. D., among others has been critical of the Agriculture Department for failing to stop Canadian shipments. Canada's export surplus, however, is relatively small compared with excess production in this country.

To date, it has cost this government about 100-million including handling and other charges to siphon off about 60 million bushels of surplus potatoes from the 1948 crop.

Only category of sales which escaped the slump was hogs which showed a trifle increased in nearly every sale. Decreasing in prices were cattle, sheep and lambs and calves.

Cattle receipts dropped 63 head this week when only 125 head were sold as compared to the 188 marketed last week.

Hogs market showed a 50 head
